Jesus: I was about 15 or 16 when I dropped out of school.

I was just roaming the streets as much as I could.

I hardly got to see my daughter.

But there was times that my daughter, unfortunately, saw me at my worst.

She sat down and told me the truth.

She was afraid that she was going to lose me.

It broke my heart to a point where I was like enough is enough.

I was working and going to my GED classes full-time.

When I held my diploma, it felt awesome.

I never thought I was going to achieve that in my lifetime.

And once you put in all that hard work,

can you imagine what more you can do from there?
